NSS Awards

To recognize the voluntary service rendered by NSS volunteers, Programme Officers (POs), NSS Units and the University NSS Cells, it has been proposed to provide suitable incentives/awards under the schemes Award Indira Gandhi national award State awards University level awards.

Conclusions:

- The idea of introducing NSS in India has a high educational justification & it was valuable for the youth & society.
- It is not necessary to introduce the NSS on a compulsory for the students and universal basis. It should be adopted by the student on a voluntary basis.
- If the idea of compulsion is contemplated, then the approach should be to make all youth liable to such a service.
- The NSS Camps should be open to academic students as well as non-academic students.
- The National service scheme should be started innovative manner so that the community person & students are aware the social issues.
- NSS would be useful to create a certain sense in the minds of youth about village community.
- The educationists are involved and control the direction of the policy and programmes.
- The work camp programmes should make truly educative and appealing to youth.
- There should be no restriction on the camps which could be adapted to differing needs.
- The selection of the right kind of projects is important to the success of the scheme.

Scheme is targeted towards community service. programmes like blood donation camp, teaching students in slums, govt schools like the recently launched GOI scheme- VIDYANJALI scheme, project umang which involves donating clothes, money for education of lesser fortunate children, evening school etc can be there

With considering all these recommendations suggested by the Professor Saiyidain the Education Minister of India Dr. V. K. Rao was introduced the scheme on 24th September 1969 on the occasion of Mahatma Gandhi Birth Centenary initially in 37 universities.
